

News Release

Contact: Tiffani Jackson

313-421-9192

tjackson1@waynecounty.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

April 22, 2015

Two Wayne County Parks Recognized by Metro Parent

SOUTHEAST, MI – The Wayne County Department of Public Services Parks Division is proud to announce that two of its parks have been featured in Metro Parent’s “Best Family Nature Centers in Southeast Michigan.”

After a lot of diligent research, Metro Parent selected the best nature center within their reader’s region. Editors at the magazine plan to update and add to this guide yearly to ensure their readers stay abreast of the happenings at the nature centers.

Crosswinds Marsh Interpretive Wetland Preserve in Sumpter Township , which ranked second on the list was recognized for its year-round family activities and its nature educational programs. . Nankin Mills Interpretive Center in Westland, which ranked eighteenth on the list, is known for its large snapping turtle that greets visitors upon arrival as well as for its hands-on approach to learning.

The Crosswinds Marsh Wetland Interpretive and the Nankin Mills Interpretive Center have educational programming and fun-filled activities to offer visitors, so be sure to stop by the park nearest you and enjoy everything it has to offer.

For more information on these and other Wayne County Parks visit www.waynecounty.com/DPS or call the Wayne County Parks office at 734-261-1990.

###